

Hi Neighbors!

I'm Christina Epling and I am thrilled to live in Heritage Hills with my husband, Chad, 3 year old son, 1 year old daughter and golden doodle.

Originally from Southern California, after graduating UCLA, I spent over 15 years working in sports and events. In Los Angeles, I worked in marketing and publicity at Paramount Pictures before moving into premium sales for the Los Angeles Clippers and STAPLES Center. When we moved to New York, I joined Tough Mudder as their Global Sales Director. Three years later we moved to Miami when I took the role of Director of Corporate Partnerships for the newly renovated Hard Rock Stadium and Miami Dolphins before making our last stop here in Denver.

Currently as a UCLA Alumni Mentor and previously serving on the board for Women in Sports & Events in New York and South Florida, I've always looked to give back to organizations that are important to me.

I would bring to the Metro Board my background in corporate partnerships and sales to help review, negotiate and secure the best service and vendor agreements for our neighborhood.

After recently completing an exterior addition to our home, I've become very interested in projects for our neighborhood that will increase collective property value and daily enjoyment.

I am focused on strengthening relationships with the city and local law enforcement to make Heritage Hills a safe, secure and welcoming neighborhood for all of us.

I would be honored to represent our neighborhood on the Heritage Hills Metro Board. Thank you!
